We are going to train health professionals. We are going to guard mothers and children

by MARILENA BERTINI - CCM President

"All men are caught in an inescapable network of mutuality, tied in a single garment of destiny. Whatever affects one directly, affects all indirectly."

Martin Luther King

In 2011 we launched Smiles of African Mothers, our first campaign focused on the health of mothers and children. We did it believing that it is our duty to try and change things. Mothers and children living in rural areas of Sub-Saharan Africa are the most vulnerable subjects ever and they are victims of unacceptable iniquities. As CCM – Comitato Collaborazione Medica – we identified targets to reach within 2015, in line with international goals and strategies.

Sure of the importance of our project we began a four-year-long journey. We have reached the first goal and I think it is important to underscore that we were right. The Campaign had a great impact and we reached most of our targets. We vaccinated and treated 610,800 children, more than we imagined; we offered obstetric and paediatric education to 1,902 health professionals, more than we hoped. We followed 127,200 women during pregnancy and delivery, unfortunately less than we planned. We regret the missed goal but at the same time we know we significantly contributed to the decrease of maternal mortality.

When it was born CCM chose to work in Sub-Saharan Africa, especially in rural areas where health services were and still are scanty and often inefficient. After over 45 years we are still working there without withdrawing even under conditions of social and political danger, which make the challenge harder. That is what is happening in the last months in Somalia, South Sudan and Burundi.

The Sustainable Development Goals SDG, presented in the new international agenda after closing the Millennium Development Goals, will see us involved in the training of health professionals with particular attention to the health of mothers and children. With Smiles of African Mothers we will continue our activities and will try to reach new goals by 2020.

I am sure that they will be five intense years. We are going to train health professionals. We are going to guard mothers and children.

We will focus on continuous care, from prevention to admission to the hospital if needed. We will educate health professionals through on-the-job training and task-shifting. Our goal is a concrete and long-lasting improvement of the possibility of care and treatment of local health system. We will pay particular attention to teen-agers and their needs, as their number in Africa is increasing. We will involve the communities and will work with the other organizations in order to improve the determinants of health.

I trust we will reach 2020 successfully.

Education, care and treatment for the health of mothers and children Looking forward to 2020 with ambitious goals

by FILIPPO SPAGNUOLO - CCM Director

Smiles of African Mothers and our commitment to mothers and children could not end in 2015. We cherish the results of the first four years of the Campaign. Everybody's work and passion, from volunteer doctors to staff, from partners to supporters, allowed us to do much and to promote important changes in rural areas where the right to health is often forgotten. Aware of how much must still be done we raised the bid! Now, like in 2011, our commitment is part of a greater challenge, the new 17 Sustainable Development Goals launched by the international community.

Our first target will be 2020. Within that year we plan to train 2,700 health workers in pae- diatrics and obstetrics, follow up 170,000 women during pregnancy and delivery and vaccinate and treat 780,000 children.

Our strategy for the next five years focuses on the continuity of treatment and care, spanning from reproductive health to mothers, babies and children and finally including teen-agers. It is important to reinforce the existing health systems and to offer more and more quality services. Of paramount importance is to make local communities aware of women needs and even more to involve those whose decisions impact on the health and even the life of mothers and children.

The central element of our strategy is always education, that is improvement of competence, skills, tools and expertise of health workers, including those non qualified, health authorities, communities and single individuals who are crucial for their own health and that of their family.

The change can take place only if also the communities in Italy contribute; in fact our behaviour and decisions and those of our governments affect the health and the rights of people far away and of our future world. Therefore CCM, through fundraising and educational activities promotes a petition for the development of health cooperation and training in our country. The challenge has been thrown again; we have much to do together!

In Sub-Saharan Africa over 400 women die every day for causes related to pregnancy and delivery.

Over 29,000 children die before 5 years for easily preventable diseases such as dysentery, measles or malaria.

Despite the recent progresses still too many women and children lose their life out of lack of qualified health professionals. In Africa 24% of diseases are recorded but only 3% of necessary health workers are present.

Therefore we ask the Minister of Foreign Affairs and of International Development, the Region Piedmont and the City of Turin to

- Prioritize mothers and children's health
- Prioritize the education of qualified health professionals
- Allocate part of the international development funds to the education of health workers

We focus on education, by standing by and promoting empowerment of health workers

by VALERIA PECCHIONI - CCM international project manager

The world has seen unbelievable progress of mothers' and children's health in the last 15 years. Never before mankind had the chance to eliminate preventable death of mothers, babies, children and teen-agers. Unluckily the progress has not been equally distributed in the world and the death of about 300,000 mothers and 6 million children below 5 years registered in 2014 occurred mostly in poor countries, especially Sub-Saharan Africa and South East Asia. In spite of heavy need those regions have not enough health professionals. In Sub-Saharan Africa there is only 3% health workers of the world versus 24% world pathologies.

That's why the action of Comitato Collaborazione Medica concentrates in East Africa (Burundi, Ethiopia, Kenya, Somalia and South Sudan) and focuses on education and improvement of the skills of health workers. Human resources and their skills are in fact a key element in the development of health systems. Since 2011 the campaign Smiles of African Mothers contributed to the education and training of 1902 doctors, nurses and community health workers on topics of mothers' and children's health. This was more than the 1700 professionals planned. Within 2020 we aim to train 2700 health workers on topics of sexual and reproductive health, health of mothers, babies, children and teen-agers and on the management of health systems, including data collection and analysis, service planning, management of medications and appliances, hygiene and waste disposal, reference system and health funding. We will work with authorities and employees in public structures or related offices in 13 different districts in order to offer adequate care to 170000 women during pregnancy and delivery and to 780000 new-borns and children.

We also plan to train 400000 people – women, girls, teachers, community leaders, members of other organizations – to promote their health and their families' through healthy life styles, access to services at recommended moments and successful solution to health problems of the community.

Education for CCM means training courses, qualification of national CVs and working near local professionals on the field. Education is a synonym of sustainability of interventions, empowerment of individuals and quality of care.

Two key concepts explained by two CCM volunteer doctors

Task shifting and training on the job

by CCM COMMUNICATION OFFICE

Education of health workers as the key to improve the health of mothers and children. Claudio Amè, do you share the approach of CCM? Why?

The approach of CCM to the problem “health” in emerging or developing countries seems to me most rational and efficient. I am sure that education is the best way to promote individual capacity provided real needs of people and the governance of the area are respected. This does not mean being conditioned by local authorities or by the needs of the working staff but simply being cooperative and respectful of different cultural milieus. It is better to teach a man to fish than giving him fish already caught, but following (more or less) local fishing habits.

Task shifting is a specific type of education allowing health workers to carry out activities usually dealt with by more educated individuals. For instance community workers can give nursing care, whereas nurses can write prescriptions instead of physicians; often general practitioners are taught surgical techniques usually performed by specialists. According to you what are the positive aspects and the challenges of this strategy adopted by CCM?

Education plays an indispensable role, from the choice of people to involve to the identification of the mode. In many rural areas or in areas far from centres with an efficient care organization, having staff (community workers) able to competently evaluate how to face a medical problem can be of paramount importance: I am thinking of well-made medications, correct blood pressure check in a pregnant woman, timely transfer to a more adequate structure. The same holds true for any more qualified worker. Nurses will be charged with the diagnosis and care of the most common diseases, clinical officers with diagnosis, treatment and organization and physicians with the most complicated tasks.

The risks of this organizational chain are being self referential and the lack of control of the results. Such risks can be partly overcome through a continuous training on the job, that is the presence of unselfish educators ready to teach and willing to change things and offering what people need..

Training on the job favours exchange of ideas and learning. Andrea Bernardi, what did you learn and what did you give them?

Through Training on the job I understood the gap between doing and teaching how to do.

I learned to explain the meaning of what I do when I visit a patient and I understood how that explanation is more immediately useful than studying a book. I hope I taught a working method instead of just theoretical notions, and I hope that such method may be practical, scientific and applicable to different circumstances and patients and may be transmitted to other workers.

In Spring 2015 Claudio Amè, a specialist in internal medicine, and Andrea Bernardi, an internal medicine resident, went to Isiolo, Kenya, with CCM. They offered support and training to the local health staff, an indispensable activity for the project designed by CCM and the NGO LVIA in the areas of Isiolo, Garbatulla and Merti. In that region there are 15 primary health structures supported by CCM together with local authorities with the aim of increasing the services.

Annual meeting. Results achieved and new objectives

by LAURA BARRAL - coordinator of the Campaign Smiles of African Mothers

OF AFRICAN MOTHERS

On 11th November 2015 the Sala delle Colonne in the City Hall of Turin hosted the annual meeting of CCM devoted to the campaign Smiles of African Mothers. It is an appointment meant to tell partners, supporters, volunteer and friends about our commitment in Africa for the health of mothers and children.

The meeting saw the participation of the people who have been following us during the past years and who are making a difference in Africa and Italy through their support. Chaired by the journalist Davide Demichelis the morning hosted the contribution of AC of the Foreign Ministry, DR senior advisor of the Accenture Foundation, Stefania Mancini of the Foundation - FAI, Giovanna Guala of ASLTO2, Fabio Biondi of Diatech Lab Line and Luca Cacciottella volunteer physician. Doctor AOI, Puntland's Health Minister sent a video message.

The session opened with institutional addresses by Ilda Curti, council member of the municipality of Turin and Monica Cerutti of Regione Piemonte.

CCM speakers were the President Marilena Bertini, the international project manager Valeria Pecchioni and the director Filippo Spagnuolo.

This year the meeting was particularly important: in fact we presented the results achieved and also our renewed commitment till 2020. Many partners have already said they will continue to stand by us.

For those who couldn't participate we summarize the highlights of the meeting.

Notes from the annual meeting Smiles of African Mothers

Ilda Curti, council member for integration policies of Turin, on behalf of the Mayor PF opened the conference with the President of CCM.

She underlined that "decentralized co-operation is crucial for equality and it is important to raise awareness and collaboration".

"We have been working with CCM for a long time and we would like that the NGO continued its precious work at Garowe General Hospital", said Doctor Abdinasir Osman Isse, Puntland's Health Minister in a video-message. "Yet Puntland is not only Garowe. There are 9 regions and the needs of mothers and children are everywhere. We would like that CCM widened its presence bringing care and training workers in new areas and different communities."

Dr Isse's video-message is on line on CCM's YouTube channel.

In Puntland only 26% women receive care during pregnancy and only 12.7% give birth with the assistance of qualified staff. At least 2,000 obstetric nurses are needed; at present there are less than 200. CCM offers technical support and training to doctors, general and obstetric nurses in the Hospital and in 4 centres of primary health care in the capital Garowe. The goal is to grant pre- and post-natal visits, efficient management of obstetric complications, safe delivery both under normal conditions and in case of caesarean section.

"Health is a traditional priority of Italian international development; this holds true for Sub-Saharan Africa, which includes 9 of the 20 countries considered most prominent for international development" said Antonio Cascio Chief of Office VII of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and International Development, Social Issues, Non Governmental Organizations and Volunteer Associations. "In 2014 over one fifth of the allocated resources and over one fourth of the funds given by DGCS were delivered to Sub-Saharan Africa. As to the projects promoted by NGOs Sub-Saharan Africa and health, especially health of mothers and children, are considered a priority"

"For several years we have been supporting a special project on neonatal health, the Kira mama project. The project offers adequate appliances and aims to give training in a complicated country like Burundi." states Stefania Mancini, vice President of Fondation Assistance Internationale - FAI, invited by CCM to participate in the panel devoted to the campaign partners. "There the mortality rates are among the highest in the world and the instability of the health system plays a key role in it. Kira mama! offers training for intermediate levels and involves local communities: two fundamental actions for actual improvement and for the decrease of children mortality. As FAI Foundation we want to give smiles to mothers longer and we invite other associations to cooperate to make a real difference".

Also ST of FAI signed the petition for the health of mothers and children. Discover her message on CCM's You Tube channel!

In Burundi neonatal mortality is 36 per 1000 births, in Italy is 2.4 per 1000; children mortality is 104 per 1000 live births, in Italy 3.3 per 1000. Kira Mama Plus! aims to reduce neonatal mortality in Cibitoke district, in the North of the country, by training general and obstetric nurses in the area. In order to offer care to newborns in the first month of life training will involve community health workers and traditional midwives who will perform home visits.

"I have been supporting Smiles of African Mothers since its beginning. I do because I know the volunteer physicians who leave every year during their holidays. They leave to do what they deem essential, that is teaching and sharing their knowledge. They come back and tell their commitment." Explained Fabio Biondi, President of Diatech Lab Line, a leader society in the distribution of products and reagents for the molecular biology laboratory. "I do it because I believe in social enterprise responsibility and in the right of health for all."

"The first striking aspect of the initiative was sharing knowledge between the physicians of our ASLs and those living and working in Africa" said Giovanna Guala, director of the Obstetrics and Paediatrics Department ASL TO2 who joined the initiative Connecting Bonds. "Another qualifying aspect is the training of our staff on topics like immigration and the relationship doctor-patient in a multicultural setting like ours. In our delivery rooms 42% patients are foreigners, and 10% of them come from Sub-Saharan Africa."

Connecting Bonds is the initiative of Smiles of African Mothers proposing twinning between Italy and Africa, going from ward to ward and from mother to mother. Up to now the initiative has been joined by ASL TO 1, ASL TO 2, ASL TO 4, ASL TO 5 e ASO Mauriziano.

Exchange, debate, growth. According to Luca Cacciottella, volunteer physician who brought his experience to the annual meeting those are the three key words to increase the competence of local health workers. "Beside theoretical lessons it is particularly important to work near the staff in order to transfer information and improve their skills. Working together allows people to know one other and learn."

Luca Cacciottella went to Ethiopia with CCM. In Ethiopia maternal mortality is 420 per 100,000 childbirths, versus 4 per 100,000 in Italy. The need of intervention is evident. Whereas 42% pregnant women undergo at least the first prenatal visit, only 19% attain the four visits recommended by the WHO. CCM has been present in the country since 2005 and it strives to improve the health services for mothers and children by training workers and providing necessary appliances to 48 health centres.

One year after, Tonj hospital has another beautiful surprise for me!

I'm back in Tonj one year after that emergency childbirth done with little instruments in an operation room arranged at the last minute and in spite of everything an (almost) perfect success. The team tells me that after that day giant steps have been done, but there are still many things to do to reach a minimal quality standard for the hospital. I believe it, but I want to see it with my own eyes. I visit the maternity ward, the delivery room, the operation room and the pharmacy, all still under refurbishing. Everybody's trying to finish the work and get new and clean space available to the community. I realize immediately that the greatest need is not refurbishing the structure but improving the services. A surgeon and a chief nurse joined the first team of physician, nurse and anaesthesiologist: the team of international professionals is complete! And above all a minimal number of local qualified workers have been hired, among whom doctors, nurses, obstetric nurses and laboratory technicians. Education is continual through support and technical assistance leading to collaboration and daily exchange of different skills and expertise.

Almost on purpose I leave the maternity ward last: I am curious and keen to see the improvement of services for mothers and babies, first beneficiaries of our project. The surprise is astounding! While waiting for the end of the works delivery room and maternity ward have been set in two small rooms in the hospital administration. Despite the precariousness of the location services are well-organized and very cosy. Irene and Christine, the two South-Sudanese obstetric nurses meticulously explain their daily work and show the files of the mothers-to-be. I guess it would be a surprise also for Italian gynaecologists and nurses coming here to support our projects: all (and I mean all) childbirths are monitored by partogram! The room looks spick-and-span and tidy and I'm even more surprised when I discover that Irene and Christine have just performed a delivery! And yet... a young woman with twins. The village midwife who had taken part in a community meeting organized by CCM understood immediately the delivery was going to be complicated. She talked with the woman and her family, convinced them to call an ambulance. The ambulance set off, reached the woman's house and took her to the hospital. There Irene and Christine intervened and adequately assisted the delivery: the first baby cephalic and the second transverse. Now all the three are in the maternity ward: the mother and two beautiful baby girls, already looking for nipples to suck!

It happens when the chain of events is perfect and the continuity of care works! The right decision at the right moment. A means of transportation immediately available, especially when the distance from a hospital may be a real problem. A well-equipped delivery room with essential medications and competent and qualified staff... and the result cannot but be optimal: a smiling mother hugging her two baby girls! But the heroes of the story are not them, or at least not only! The heroes are expert health professionals, trained and motivated; it's them who made the difference! It's Mama, as our Ethiopian obstetric nurse Desalegn introduced the traditional midwife, who recognized the danger immediately and without hesitation, made up her mind and called the ambulance. It's Irene and Christine who helped the delivery with dedication and competence, rigorously following protocols and procedures. It's Desalegn who guided and supported them in the last months with strength, determination and competence and... with a great desire to change things. In doing so he caused a great improvement of the service offered to women in Tonj and surrounding areas. All of them gave us that smile and they improved the maternity department of Tonj hospital.

South Sudan

Since 1983 CCM has been working in South Sudan, in different areas of the country to support and reinforce health structures of different levels among which hospitals, health centres and clinics especially focused on women during pregnancy and delivery and on children through post-natal visits, vaccination and nutritional campaigns. Following the civil war burst in December 2013, CCM activity intensified to respond the sanitary emergency in the area stricken by conflict and famine. It is the case of Mingkaman, a small rural village on the shore of the White Nile that in a few weeks became one of the largest refugee camps in the country. Now Mingkaman is a town of 75,000 inhabitants.

There, thanks to the generosity of Maria Rita who decided to make a donation in memory of her father Alfio, CCM has completed the construction of a stabilization centre, a structure where malnourished children can receive all the treatment and care they need.
